HISTORICAL RECORD
1896.

THIS little booklet is the result of long years of short work. Every little while during the past twenty years or more, I have spent some time in collecting and arranging the dates which follow. This comes to you as a forerunner, and, as must be, there are many errors and omissions. It is my wish that any found by you will be noted and sent me at once. The references used are Burke's "British Peerage," Lyle's "Lords of Scotland and Ireland," Campbell's "History of the Families of Virginia," "Washington's Reports," the encyclopaedias and the records of the Land Registry Office of Virginia.

On the first page hereof you will find a chart of the line of descent from Alexander Macdonald of the Isles, to Esther Alexander, our maternal ancestor. Alexander Macdonald made war upon the kings of Scotland, and was banished about 1472; thus his son, Alexander, lost his surname and was known as Alex. Alexander, the first Baron of Menstrie, 1490. "The Standard" of July 21, 1880, connects this family with that of the noble house of Sterling in an article under title of "The Alexander Family of Scotland and America."

As to our Ancestors' record in the Revolutionary War, we have not taken steps to prove our claims; yet we know, to our own satisfaction, that William Austin of Augusta County, Virginia, was a Captain, and that the two John Thomsons served, one as Second Lieutenant in the First Virginia, the other as Second Lieutenant in the Seventh Virginia.

Of the Austin branch of the family little has been found further than the name stands on the pages of the English "Doomsday Book" as belonging to one of those who came into England with William the Conqueror. The name multiplies in Saxon, Norman, England, and some went into Wales, while others found homes in Germany. Of the ancestry back of William and Moses Austin (see record) I know nothing. As above stated, Captain William Austin served in the Revolutionary army. I have had the pleasure of holding his sword and canteen and hearing the history of his good deeds from his son, my uncle Alexander Austin.

Of the Arnolds I know little, other than that they are come of the "Heart of Oak" English Arnolds and are distantly related to Dr. Arnold of Rugby.

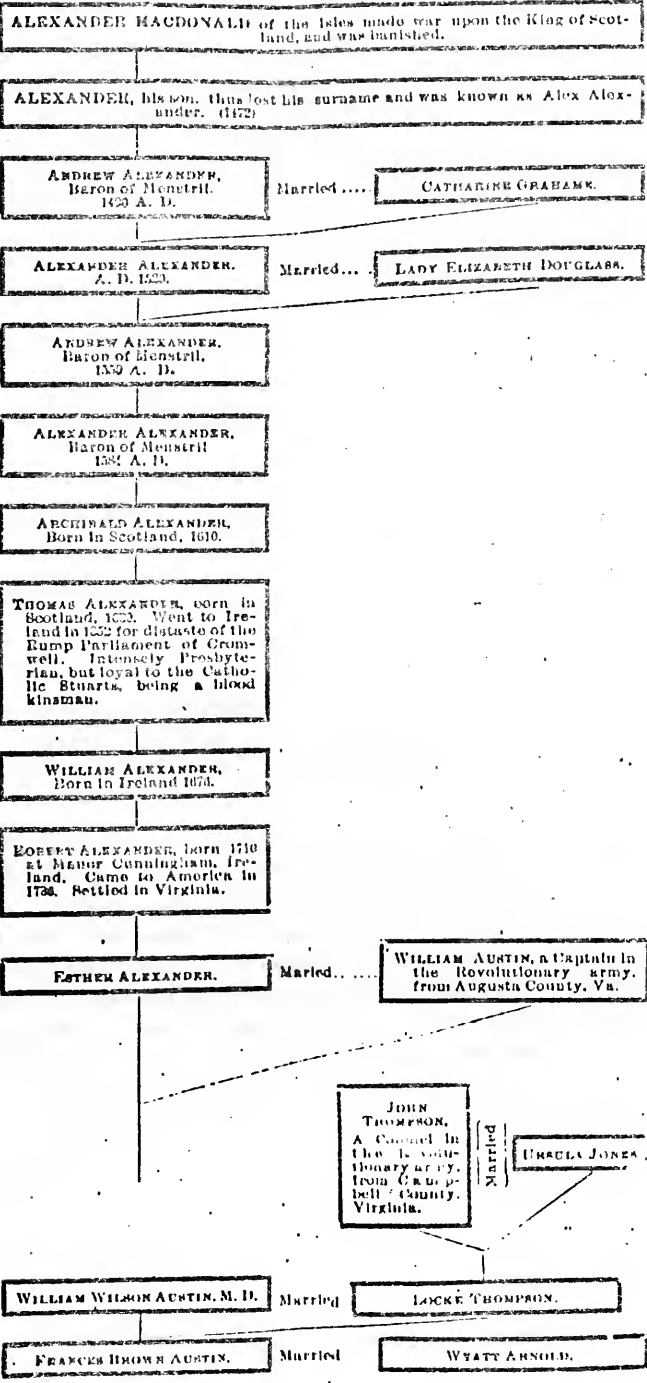

The first part of this history is the deduction of the eminent and accomplished antiquarian and genealogist, Alexander Brown, Esq., of Norwood, Nelson County, Virginia.

I am indebted for the direct arrangement of this history to my daughter, Mrs. Wesley Dunscombe Shanklin (nee Locké Ana Arnold), and to my grandchildren, the Rev. William Arnold Shanklin, D. D., Frances Shanklin and Arnold Shanklin. For much information and the picture of the coat-of-arms I am indebted to my niece, Mrs. William G. McCausland (nee Susan Austin Arnold).

ARCHIBALD ALEXANDER

AND HIS DESCENDANTS IN IRELAND AND AMERICA

The names Alexander and Allister are the same.

The clans McAlexander and McAllister are the same.

Archibald the I., the first of the family, lived and died in Scotland.

Early in the 17th century, probably in 1610, as that was the date of the great religious emigration, three sons of the above, namely: Strong, William and Thomas, emigrated to Ireland.

Thomas married and left a daughter and a son. The daughter married Joseph Parks and had a daughter, Margaret. The son, William, was "a very fat man." He left four sons:

1. Archibald. See Campbell's History of Virginia, p. 422.
2. William, who married a widow in Philadelphia and d. s. p.
3. Robert. See Campbell's History of Virginia, p. 429.
4. Peter.

(A biography of Archibald, by his son, James W. Alexander, a book which, although out of print, could probably be picked up by Scribner, refers to these four brothers as sons of Thomas.)

Archibald Alexander, born in Ireland, manor of Cunningham, February 4, 1708, emigrated to Pennsylvania in 1737, and from Pennsylvania to then Augusta (now Rockbridge) county, Va., in 1747. He married first in Ireland, on the 31st of December 1734, his first cousin Margaret Parks. "She was of middling stature and rather inclined to be lean, with light hair and florid countenance; she was very pious." Their children were:

 14. Archibald, born March 3, 1771.
 15. Jane, born in 1773; she married Rev. John Doak; he lived and died in Tennessee.

Robert Alexander, another of the brothers who came to America, locating in Augusta county, Va., prior to 1747, was a graduate of the University of Dublin, and taught the first classical school west of the mountains of Virginia, of which school the present Washington & Lee University is the lineal descendant. This Robert had a son Robert; his children were:

1. William, died in Rockbridge, January, 1829, aged about 85.
2. Robert, who was the first Clerk of the Court of Campbell county, Virginia, the office being located at his residence, "Rock Castle;" married Nancy Austin. Robert was succeeded in the clerkship by his son, John D. Alexander; the Alexander family, through father, son and grandson held the office of Clerk of the Court for nearly a hundred years.

 5. Peter, moved to Woodford county, Ky.; was alive in 1822.

6. Esther, married Capt. William Austin, up to the war of 1776 a loyal subject of His Majesty of England.

The following is a copy of William Austin's Commission to the Captaincy, the original of which has the royal seal affixed, and is in the possession of Mrs. Sarah Austin Rawlings of Bedford Springs, Virginia.
